and, and one of the exceptions undoubtedly was that any hon. member might be permitted to take his place and take the oath before the speech had been read. If that were so, it seemed to him it was competent for the House to transact any business that was incident to the taking of the oath—it was quite competent to transact any business that was necessary to be transacted in order to enable any hon. member to take the oath, or to make any inquiry that might be necessary to be made in order to ascertain whether any hon. member could take it in a particular form or could make an affirmation instead. Mr. LALOR must have been hard beat to quote proceedings in this case as justifying a departure from the ordinary course in the case of a want of a confidence motion. The case supports the rule, instead of tending to supersede it.

The leading protectionist journal of Victoria, in an article of the 21st instant, has some comments upon our leading article of the 25th August, and upon the statement in a side article of that date upon which our comment was based. None of our figures are challenged, but rather endorsed by our contemporary, and interwoven with its own article in a manner which renders it difficult for the reader to understand what is the quotation and what the reply. From official documents it was shown in our column that last year the Customs revenue of New South Wales was at the rate of £125,234, per head of mean population without ad valorem duties, and that of Victoria only £124,444 per head with ad valorem duties. Our contemporary says, "the inference is simply that the weight of taxation in both colonies is very nearly equal." If by "taxation" our contemporary means taxation through the Customs-house, that is self-evident; but as between a free trade or a protectionist tariff, the question of equality of taxation is altogether another matter. Upon one theory all the subjects of a State are to contribute equally towards meeting the cost of Government, and when they pay taxes upon commodities the State must not interfere so as to let the consumer of foreign produce escape, while the consumer of local produce bears the whole burden. Upon the other theory the State should tax foreign produce heavily for the purpose of encouraging the consumption of local produce, and that is the Victorian ad valorem duties are intended to accomplish. We proved that New South Wales was far richer with her free trade policy than Victoria with her policy of protection, for our free capital and labour gave an average value of local produce last year equal to £10,381,885, against a value of £8,069,857 for the larger population of Victoria; that upon articles subject to almost identical duties in both colonies—articles of general consumption, and not typical of either protection or free trade—the yield to the revenue in this colony was higher than in Victoria, thus showing, presumably, the easier circumstances and the greater spending power of our people; and, finally, that as the heavy ad valorem import duties in Victoria had not killed importation, it was a fair inference that the consumers of local produce must have paid higher prices for the same articles, just as the consumers of imported produce did, than they would have had to pay but for those ad valorem duties. "No," says our contemporary, "for the result of experience is that, competition being the life of trade, protection keeps down the price of imported goods. If so, what need of protection? Surely when a local producer can sell his goods at as good an article at a lower price, the public will not be so insane as to pay a higher price for the sake of having an article imported from abroad! But, take the former part of the sentence, 'competition is the life of trade.' Exactly, but does competition begin only in Hobson's Bay or Port Jackson? Do not merchants compete with one another as well as manufacturers? And if it be said that merchants sometimes form a 'ring' for the sake of rigging the market, and dividing the spoils, do not manufacturers play the same trick quite as often? Free trade seeks to break up these monopolies, because they are so harmful to the general public as they are temporarily beneficial to a few monopolists. Leave every man free to buy or sell wherever he likes, without fining him for choosing to buy in one particular place rather than in another, and you not only respect his personal rights as a citizen, but afford the best conditions of individual and national wealth. In one sense, the whole world may be said to be engaged in a great enterprise of industrial competition. So much the better for the world. It is a beneficent competition, if it be left free from fiscal restraints, and only those few who are able to benefit themselves at the expense of their fellow-men.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

A précis of the Queen's speech at the prorogation of the Imperial Parliament, on Tuesday, will be found amongst our cable messages of this morning. The speech referred to the failure of the Ottoman Government to carry out the stipulations of the Berlin Treaty, and to the steps taken to bring about the multi-lateral peace in the Balkans, and the Greek and Montenegrin frontiers. The recent brilliant victory of General Roberts in Afghanistan has occasioned the liveliest satisfaction. The state of affairs at the Cape, the reasonably abundant harvest in many parts of Great Britain and Ireland, and the labours of the past season, are also referred to in the speech. From another message we learn that the President of the United States, Mr. Hayes, has received a visit from the Prince of Wales to Australia has provoked an official denial of them. His Royal Highness cannot come for the present, owing to his numerous engagements. The terms of a treaty between Russia and China have been arranged, and the prospect of a war between those Powers need seem very remote. With regard to Montenegro, it is stated that the latter has yielded to the representations of the Powers, and will cede to Montenegro the territory she wants, as stipulated by the Berlin Conference.

The match between the Australian cricket representatives and eleven of All England was resumed on Tuesday, and judging from present appearances is likely to result in a one-innings victory for the home team. The first innings of the latter closed for a magnificent total of 441 runs, against which the Australians, in their first attempt only succeeded in putting a moderate total of 148 together. Murdoch was dismissed without scoring; and although Boyle, Bannerman, and McDonnell apparently battled well, the majority of the team made but a brief stay at the wickets. The colonial players had, as a matter of course, to follow their innings, and were more successful in obtaining runs. When the stumps were drawn for the day six wickets had fallen for 170 runs, Murdoch contributing 70 (not out), and McDonnell 43. Bonnor, who had already made 13, was to resume the innings with Murdoch on the following day, and as the Australians are still 101 runs behind, they need four wickets to fall, a one-innings defeat is almost a foregone conclusion, unless the two New South Wales batsmen make an unusually long stand at the wickets.

A MEETING of the sub-committee appointed to make arrangements for a public banquet in honour of Sir Hercules Robinson was held at the Town Hall, yesterday. After a lengthy discussion, it was decided to hold another meeting this afternoon, when it will be definitely decided if a banquet will be held at all, and arrangements made accordingly.

The emigrant ship Peterborough is nearly disburdened of its living freight. Yesterday it was ascertained that of the 183 immigrants she has brought 83 were immediately dispatched from the depot to friends and relatives in the country who had written for them. Married couples and single men were placed on his yesterday, and it is expected the single women will be for hire to-morrow.

We hear that the Department of Public Instruction have for some time past had measures under consideration for bringing into force the 20th and 21st clauses of the Public Instruction Act, which deal with the question of obligatory attendance at Public schools. It is rumoured that an officer has been appointed to attend to these matters in Sydney. The great anxiety of the department is to be to take such steps as will enable them to bring the compulsory clauses into operation in an effectual manner, but at the same time with the least possible amount of hardship to the public—a matter requiring no little judgment, especially as compulsion in education has hitherto been unknown amongst us. It is expected that school boards for some of the school districts in and around Sydney will be appointed immediately.

It has been a matter for complaint during the past few weeks that the suburban trains have been as a rule some minutes behind time, owing to being obliged to proceed at a very slow pace over the works now in progress at the Petersham Bridge. It appears that the works in question are of a rather important nature, and that it is not likely to be finished for some weeks yet. The department, therefore, we understand, are about to take means to minimize the delay, by dividing the "block" between Petersham and Ashfield into two sections, and placing a blockhouse at or near the works. Under the present system no two trains can be on the same line of rails at the same time; but when that distance is divided into two blocks, a second train, instead of having to wait at Ashfield until the first train has passed Petersham, will be able to proceed as soon as the first train has passed the intermediate blockhouse, so that a great saving of time will be effected, and in fact the only delay will be in the case of the train for a few minutes while passing the works.

In the Supreme Court, yesterday, the Full Court, consisting of their Honors Mr. Justice Faircliff, Mr. Justice Manning, and Mr. Justice Windeyer, discharged the rule nisi for a new trial in the Municipal case of Numb v. Lackey, in which the plaintiffs had obtained a verdict and damages from the Government for taking possession of and using the site at the North bridge, two lots placed in the charge of the municipality, for use in time of flood. In Brook v. Cross, an action of ejectment, a rule nisi for a new trial was discharged, the verdict for the plaintiff not being disturbed.

The Sydney Mercantile Provident Association seems to be now fairly established. Leading firms in Sydney have, upon solicitation, laid the foundation of the society, with gifts, amounting in the aggregate to £2000, and the general meeting is to be held, over 300 names have been handed in for membership. Supplementing the primary objects of the society, which we have previously noticed—provision for widows and orphans of members, assistance to members in cases of want or sickness—it has now been proposed that the lending of sums of money to members be made able by approved instalments, should form one of the objects. We understand that the first general meeting is fixed for Tuesday evening, 28th instant, at the Exchange, when the rules will be reconsidered, and the officers elected. Meantime, Messrs. Pigott and Trickett, solicitors, are being consulted, as regards the incorporation of the society.

The usual monthly meeting of the members of the Microscopical Section of the Royal Society of New South Wales was held in the society's rooms, Elizabeth-street, last evening. Dr. Morris occupied the chair. After the transaction of the usual routine business, the chairman read some interesting notes on an encysted fœtus found in the flesh of the bullock, and exhibited the cyst, and portions of the mature and embryo worms under the microscope. The cyst was formed of dense white fibrous tissue, in which was found the mature worm, with interlaced masses of tissue corresponding with the folds of the worm. The cyst is about the size of a large Barcelona nut, and may contain more than one mature worm, which is completely filled with encysted and free embryos. It is impossible to decide definitely how many embryos were contained in the cyst, but they may be numbered by hundreds of thousands. Mr. Pelley exhibited a number of slides of parasitic infestations. Professor Livesidge, for distribution amongst the members of the section, two samples of fossil diatomaceous deposits—the one from the Richmond River, N. S. W., and the other from Santa Maria, California.

On Tuesday evening the Glebe Band of Courage met in the hall of the Glebe Presbyterian Church. The band was led by the conductor, Mr. A. Gardner, M.A., who examined the young on the history of Samuel, and the names of those who excelled were placed on the prize list. The Rev. Robert Collier, of Newtown, gave an interesting reading. Mr. Simon Brown delivered an address on the subject of temperance, which was listened to with much attention. Some of the young people recited, and the chairman also gave a reading. At the close of the meeting it was announced that the next would be the last meeting of the present session of the Band of Courage.

A MEETING was held at the Temperance Hall, yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of instituting a Young Women's Christian Association. The meeting, which was largely attended, was presided over by the Bishop of Sydney; the Bishop of Bathurst, and several other clergymen, and a large number of ladies were also present. A report of the proceedings appears elsewhere.

A DEPUTATION consisting of Messrs. Roseby, Holdway, and James Price, on Wednesday, representing the different Temperance bodies in the city, waited upon the Hon. Sir Samuel, Agent-General, yesterday, to request him to convey to Sir Wilfrid Lawson an address congratulating him upon the passage of his local option resolutions in the House of Commons. Mr. Samuel promised to comply with the wish of the deputation, and a large number of ladies were also present. The address, which is from the united temperance societies of the colony, has been tentatively endorsed by Mr. Oldfield, and bound by Mr. Jerrold, George-street.

A SOCIAL gathering in connection with the newly-formed Hope of Chippendale Tent of the Independent Order of Rechabites took place on Tuesday evening, in St. Paul's Schoolroom, Chippendale. The tables were laid for a large number of ladies and gentlemen, and the Rev. D. C. Rorror, who presided, made the chair, and in a brief address explained the aims and principles of the order, and referred to Jeremiah xxxv, 6, in elucidation of the appropriateness of the name Rechabites. A lengthy programme of vocal and instrumental music, recitations, and short addresses followed. In the course of the evening a number of ladies presented addresses to Mr. William Clarke, who had been transmitted from Melbourne in recognition of the valuable services he had for many years rendered to the order in that colony, especially in the capacity of District Chief Ruler. Mr. Clarke appropriately acknowledged the compliment, and said that in the future, as in the past, it would be his pleasure to do his utmost to promote the interests of the Rechabites in this colony, and to be in every respect equal to the best of similar bodies for the promotion of the cause of total abstinence, while, as regards the monetary benefits proposed, it is founded upon sounder and safer principles than any with which he was acquainted. Mr. Joseph Clarke followed, and recommended the young ladies present to their brothers and friends the propriety and advantage of joining without delay this newly-formed tent. A vote of thanks to the ladies who attended to the tea was carried by acclamation, and, with a stanza of the National Anthem, a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close shortly after 10 o'clock.

On Tuesday evening last, in connection with the Glenmore House Band of Hope, a magic lantern exhibition was held in the Congregational Church, Rushcutters Bay, under the management of Mr. George Norton Russell. The president, the Rev. William Bradley, occupied the chair; and there was a very large gathering of members and friends. The views comprised a varied collection of comic characters, moral subjects, and even memorable Blue Board, and Cinderella, and the Glass Slipper. After a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Russell, and recitations by some of the members, the meeting terminated by the chairman pronouncing the benediction.

The Attorney-General has notified that he does not intend to file an indictment in the matter of Burdett and Norris, committed from the Central Police-office, on a charge of feloniously administering some noxious drug, with intent to procure abortion.

OWNERS of dogs are reminded that the time has arrived for renewing their registrations. Former owners of the difficulty arising from delay should induce an early compliance with the law.

YESTERDAY a stand pipe for the supply of water to the inhabitants of Petersham was opened at the corner of Parramatta Road and Railway-street, the requisite piping having been extended from the city mains. The Mayer and Corporation of Sydney are to be commended for having thus made provision for the necessities of another suburb in the present time of drought. We understand that the Petersham Municipal Council purpose making arrangements with a water-carrier for the supply of the residents at a specified price, of course very considerably below what hitherto has had to be paid.

Mr. JOHN PORTER has been appointed honorary member of the Victorian Congress, and corresponding member of the Veterinary College and Association. Mr. Porter has been invited to read two papers on subjects for consideration by the Congress.

It was reported at the City Coroner's office, yesterday, that about 7 a.m., the dead body of a newly-born female infant was found partially concealed under some sacks in Earl-street, off Victoria-street, by a boy named Stephen Norton. There were no marks of violence on the body, and it was wrapped in a piece of old and dirty calico. Constable O'Keefe took the remains to the deadhouse, Circular Quay, where they were seen by Dr. Egan. An inquest will be held this morning.

A CHILD named Margaret McMahon, 11, living in Howard-square, off Parramatta-street, was taken by her mother to the Infirmary late on Tuesday night in an unconscious condition, suffering from bleeding at the right ear and probably fracture of the base of the skull. The child was sweating out the schoolroom at St. Benedict's, and is supposed to have stepped on a piece of orange peel at 6 o'clock, and fallen down. She was admitted and attended to by Dr. J. Moffitt.

Mr. (Age) have to record the death of Mr. Thomas Higginbotham, elder brother of Mr. Justice Higginbotham and so well known as the Engineer-in-Chief of the Railway Department. His demise took place in a singularly sudden manner, at the residence of his brother, Middle-brook, on Sunday morning. The deceased gentleman had exhibited no signs of indisposition sufficient to give rise to any degree of anxiety, and was, so far as his friends knew, in his usual health. He attended at his office on Friday last, but was absent on Saturday, owing to the fact, as he explained to his brother, of being unable to find a call for his services at that time. When Mr. Justice Higginbotham arrived home on Saturday afternoon, he found the deceased sitting before the fire with a rug thrown over his feet, and complaining in an off-handed manner of feeling somewhat chilly. He did not complain greatly, but merely appeared to be slightly unwell. Nothing unusual occurred during the rest of the day, and he did not think of his condition until he retired to his bedroom, but it is supposed that he did so after the rest of the household. He did not make his appearance the following morning at breakfast at the usual hour, and as his absence became protracted, his brother went into the room and found him lying dead in bed. The body lay in a perfectly easy position, and there were no signs whatever of any struggling having taken place. The bedclothes were not disturbed to any extent, and from the appearance of the chamber it seemed as if death had overtaken him calmly and without pain. Dr. Casey was at once sent for, and on his arrival inspected the body, announcing afterwards that death had taken place some hours previously, due, according to his belief, to apoplexy.

It is intended to hold a special service in All Saints Church, Petersham, on Saturday afternoon, to mark the completion of the building. Particulars regarding this service will be found in our advertising columns.

THE WRECK OF THE SORATA.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENTS.)
ADELAIDE, WEDNESDAY.
The following telegram was received by the Postmaster from Cape Jervis to-day:—"There is no difference in the position of the Sorata, except that she is leaking in the fore hold, and all her compartments are full of filling. The Mary Miller is still alongside taking in cargo. The wind is west, light and variable, and a thick drizzling rain is falling. The sea is very smooth, and the swell has gone down."

CAPE JERVIS, WEDNESDAY MORNING.
The mist has lifted, and the drizzle stopped. The day promises to be fine. The steam launch engine has been repaired, and the launch is working well now. In the engine-room, just over the starboard side of the door, and in the after hold this morning the water was 10 feet lower than the level; but the water is leaking in rapidly from the engine-room. Should the present calm weather continue, there is every chance of floating the vessel. Diver Jack has been sent for. The diver is now down the main hold, singing songs. All the cargo left in her is now awash, and difficult to raise. The second officer, while navigating a cave, lurched into the hold, and had to be hauled up with a tackle. The captain has telegraphed for the doctor to come aboard.

6 P.M.
The centrifugal pump so far as a failure. There has been a dispute as to whether the engine, the engineer from Lindsay's, and the chief engineer. Night after the pump, when rigged, did not work well, Austin wanted to alter it one way, and the chief engineer another. Ultimately Austin knocked off work. Two or three attempts were made to put the pump right, but they broke down one way or the other each time. The weather is fine, and the sea a little stronger.

The night promises to be fine and quiet, and there is nothing further to report. The evidence points to the fact that there was no haze on the night of the accident. It was a clear starlight night.

Mr. E. C. Cranknell, Superintendent of Telegraphs, has courteously supplied us with the following official information from Adelaide:—

CAPE JERVIS, 10 P.M.
There appears to have been some hitch in getting the pumps to work on board the Sorata this afternoon, and the day is not yet able to commence pumping, until tomorrow morning at earliest. Night after the pump, when rigged, did not work well, Austin wanted to alter it one way, and the chief engineer another. Ultimately Austin knocked off work. Two or three attempts were made to put the pump right, but they broke down one way or the other each time. The weather is fine, and the sea a little stronger.

REMARKABLE ACTIVITY AND REMARKABLE TARDINESS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—We have, within the past few days, seen in this city a very remarkable anxiety on the part of the Government to complete the railway to provide for the amusement of the tourists, and to the effect that the railway is to be completed by the end of the year. It is a very remarkable fact that the work has been kept going, so that by last Saturday morning the line was ready for the passage of trains and motors, and provision was made for the people's pleasure. This work was going on while a water famine appears to stare us in the face; and yet the population make no stir to urge the Government to hasten with the work of water-supply. The evidence is considered first, while means of safety against disease and famine is left to take its long course. Why cannot the work of water-supply be carried on at each end and along the line of work? Why cannot day and night of men be kept going, or three shifts of eight hours each, during the twenty-four hours, the work being carried on by torchlight or by electric light? When it was necessary to complete the Exhibition by night work the electric light was used; no expense was spared to get the great building ready by a certain day. Why, then, this time of probable extreme emergency, when a few weeks more of drought may see our water supply fail, cannot our authorities use every means science can give to save this city and suburbs from the fatal scourge of water famine?

Labour is not scarce, and if it were, in this colony, money can bring it here. Money at such a time which threatens the life of the community, is not life and life are now the consideration. Health and life cannot supply this great city and its surroundings. Already we find several houses crying out for water. Walls and tanks have dried, and the water has been used. The City Corporation consider the city, the Government have to consider a wider range of the colony, and the people of the metropolis and its populous environs, the prosperity of the colony depends. Should a day's further delay be permitted, I appeal to all my fellow citizens to remonstrate with our Government upon the most disastrous delay. Let public meetings be held, and let the cry from every household be raised to urge to action those who are guilty of this neglect of public duty.

There is no time to lose. We have had a dry season from the beginning of the year, a dry summer is most probable, and it is possible that days for days are not at present—days when the sun is shining, and the wind is blowing, with joy of welcome and festivities; but for now we are at present for the Almighty to give us rain to save our lives and our souls and health. Yours obediently, J. J. J. J.

THE AUSTRALIAN ELEVEN v. ALL ENGLAND.
LONDON, SEPT. 7.
The match was resumed to-day. Owing to the rain which fell overnight, the wickets were dead at starting, and the remaining English batsmen were soon disposed of, the innings terminating for a total of 420 runs. The Australians then went to the wickets, but made only a moderate stand, the innings closing for 140 runs, Boyle, Bannerman, and McDonnell being the only batsmen who scored well. The Australians had to follow on, and in the second innings were more fortunate, the score standing at the close of the day at 170 runs, with 6 wickets down. Murdoch scored 70 (not out), and on returning to the pavilion received a hearty greeting. McDonnell scored 43, and was then given out leg before wicket; Blackham scored 19, and Bonnor is not out with 13 to his credit. The following are the complete scores:—

TREATY BETWEEN AUSTRIA, GERMANY, AND ROMANIA.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AND THE MELBOURNE EXHIBITION.

MELBOURNE, SEPT. 8.

The Prince of Wales, in an article referring to the Prince of Wales having abandoned any intention of visiting Australia for the present, says that the Melbourne Exhibition is likely to be interesting and instructive, but would be more successful if the Victorian Government would abandon its prejudices, and allow exhibits to be sold duty free.

THE PROROGATION OF PARLIAMENT—THE QUEEN'S SPEECH.

LONDON, SEPT. 7.

Parliament was formally prorogued to-day. The Queen's Speech, which was delivered on the occasion, states that her Majesty continues to receive friendly assurances from the different foreign Powers, and that the relations maintained by the country are of an eminently satisfactory character.

Mention was next prominently made of the state of affairs in the East, with reference to which the Speech states that the failure of the Ottoman Porte to carry out the stipulations of the European Conference has seriously delayed the much-to-be-desired settlement of questions affecting Montenegro and other important points in the Treaty of Berlin, and as the initiation of reforms in Asia Minor, and the rectification of the Greek frontier, in consequence of the neglect by the Porte to give effect to the recommendations of the Powers, the latter have, by a joint letter, informed the Sultan of their judgment as to the means requisite for due execution of the stipulations of the treaty which still remain unfulfilled, and that they now confidently rely upon the speedy attainment of the ends in view, the whole of Europe being concerned in the questions at issue between Turkey and her neighbours.

Her Majesty's Government, therefore, in conjunction with other Powers, is pressing the Porte to adopt the measures which are regarded as essential for the solution of existing difficulties. Her Majesty is convinced that the policy adopted is calculated to ensure the maintenance of peace in the East.

Referring to the progress of events in Afghanistan, the Speech states that the recent brilliant victory by General Roberts has caused the liveliest satisfaction, and her Majesty hopes that it will contribute towards bringing about an honourable and speedy termination of the war in that country. The Speech conveys no further intimation respecting the policy which it is intended to adopt with regard to Afghanistan.

Negotiations expressed that no advance has been made towards confederation of the South African colonies, and a hope is expressed that at some future time the question may receive favourable consideration by the colonies immediately concerned.

Alluding to the agitation prevailing in Basuto-land against the decision of the British authorities that all arms shall be delivered before a certain date, the Speech says that her Majesty hopes that by the adoption of a moderate and conciliatory policy the excitement in that province will be shortly allayed, and perfect tranquillity be re-established throughout her South African dominions.

Her Majesty is thankful to learn that the harvest in many parts of Great Britain and Ireland has proved reasonably abundant, and states that there are grounds for anticipating a more marked revival from

THE MONTENEGRIN DIFFICULTY.

CONSTANTINOPLE, SEPT. 7.

Latest advices from Dulcigno are of a much more pacific character. The Albanians, seeing that the Great Powers are resolved to insist on the due execution of the decisions of the recent Conference, have at length abandoned the hostile attitude they had assumed, and the leaders of the league have now formally consented to hand over the town to the Turkish authorities, preparatory to its cession to Montenegro.

THE AUSTRALIANS v. ALL ENGLAND.

LONDON, SEPT. 7.

The match between the Australian Eleven and the English representative team was resumed at Kennington Oval to-day.

The Home team continued their innings, but the last men failed to make a stand, the tenth wicket falling for a total of 420 runs.

After the conclusion of the innings of the home team, the Australians went to the wickets, and succeeded in running up a total of 140 before being all disposed of. The top score was made by Boyle, who carried out his bat for thirty-six. In the second innings, although the first batsmen made but an indifferent stand, Murdoch, who went in fourth, soon got the bowling of the Eleven in hand and made an excellent display of batting, which elicited much admiration. He was well seconded by Percy McDonnell, who scored freely for a well-played innings of 43, and was then given out leg before wicket. He was followed by Bonnor, who put together 13, and was not out when the play was brought to a close for the day. During this time Murdoch continued to make runs very fast, and had scored 79 when time was called. He also was not out. The result of the innings thus far is, that the Australians have made 170, with the loss of 6 wickets. The ground during the latter part of the day was much more favourable for the batsmen, the weather improving, and continuing very fine throughout. There was again a very large attendance at the Oval to witness the game. The number of persons present being about the same as yesterday. Doubts are entertained as to whether time will admit of the game being finished, owing to the stand made by the Australians.

THE PRINCE OF WALES AND AUSTRALIA.

LONDON, SEPT. 8.

Rumours have continued current at Plymouth and elsewhere, that it was the intention of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales to visit the Australian colonies. An official notification has, therefore, been published to-day, stating that, in consequence of numerous engagements, the Prince has been compelled to abandon the proposed visit for the present.

BATHURST.

WEDNESDAY.

This morning a man, name unknown, was found dead in bed at Walsan's Spread Eagle Hotel, William-street. He arrived there this morning at 6 o'clock, and told the landlord that he had come by train from Sydney. At 8.30 a.m. he complained that his nose had bled very much during the journey. After having a glass of wine, he went to bed, and as he did not rise at about 10 a.m., Mr. Walsan went to his room to call him, and found he was dead. Information was given to the police and deceased was removed to the hospital, where an inquest will be held to-morrow. Deceased appears to be about 28 years of age, 5 feet 8 inches high, fair complexion and fair whiskers, and about a week's growth of beard on the chin. He was dressed in a pilot coat, tweed trousers, and a hat. He had a

THE TRAMWAY FROM HUNTER-STREET TO RANDWICK RACECOURSE.

As this line has now been opened for public traffic, no particulars respecting it will be found interesting to our readers. It commences in Elizabeth-street, at Hunter-street passes along Elizabeth, Liverpool, Oxford, and Botany streets to Park Road, where it enters the eastern portion of Moore Park, passing alongside the inner race until it crosses the water-ledge, and then runs over the town, across the weir, to its termination, opposite the Randwick race-course gates. The portion from Hunter-street to the water-ledge is a single line, and the portion from the pool-street to Moore Park a single line; and for the remaining distance a double line.

The through distance is 3 miles 20 chains, but the double line portion of the work constructed equal to 4 miles of single line.

Through the streets the work is of the usual character excepting in Botany-street, where the road has in some places been lowered as much as 12 inches, to suit the level of the street. In the portion of the line in Moore Park section there are some heavy cuttings and embankments, the principal embankment being the one across the river between the water-ledge and the pool-street.

[illegible]

We have been given to understand that the work has been faithfully carried out in all respects, and that the street is now open to the public. On the other hand, however, it is anticipated, amount to very little. The fact of the time being opened for the public on a gala day, during which the street is closed to the public, is a very important consideration, and it is not probable that any accident of any kind must be a matter of compensation to the contractors and to the Transvaal.

The Engineer for Transvaal, Mr. E. Gjodstad, has expressed himself highly pleased with the expeditious manner in which the work has been carried out.

him for the fact that there was so little obstruction to the street traffic during the progress of the work.

It may be mentioned that Messrs. Topham, Angus and Co. are the contractors for the new extension, viz., from Bondy-street to Woolbahn and South Head Road, and also for the Cross-street line.

Prices are about the same as last week's, but the market is better. The best yearling brought £14 to £20, the best of bulls, £7 to £8, and a few old heifers £10; low brought £10 10s. to £9 10s. The best cows varied from £12 to £20. We sold 120 prime bullocks, from Tocumwal, Riverina, up to 10s., the average being £6 3s. 7d., and Gippsland lots. The stock market was active, and prices slightly higher. Best yearling wethers made 13s. to 14s."

The reports of the victories said to have been gained by the Chinese over the Russians are described in official circles at St. Petersburg as mere Eastern bazaar gossip. Fifteen hundred volunteers, both officers and men, are however going to the Pacific to strengthen the forces in the Amur district. An English steamer has been chartered at Cronstadt for the conveyance of material to Vladivostok. The Emperor went yesterday to Cronstadt to inspect the cruiser Europe and the two clipper before they leave for the Pacific. The cruiser Russia left on Friday with her complement of military passengers.

that just in proportion as they took up the work it was that it suggested by the Bible, so would the work be increased. He said that the work was not to be increased by the work, and a very large amount of blessing would follow that work. As a clergyman in that city for some years, he had seen the work of the Holy Spirit in the city. He pointed out that great benefit must necessarily flow from the landing, together of Christian women in a work of this kind, and their influence would be the means of increasing the work. He said that the work of the Christian institution there should be two classes: members, to include those who were in full communion with some Christian church, and non-members, who might be highly benefited by the work. He said that the difficulties would be met with, but he did not believe that any one would be the greatest difficulty, nor would the work be a great one. He said that he had been in Sydney that when money was required for a Christian work it was sure to be forthcoming. The greatest difficulty would be the appointment of a man of the proper superintendence. If they only had a man of the proper superintendence, they would be able to do the work. He said that he would have the institution. But even then something more was required; the ladies who manage the institution must just ensure to obtain the confidence of the young men of this city.

The Rev. E. J. HODGSON rounded the resolution. The Bishop of Melbourne, in a recent address to the Church Synod of Victoria, said that until every communion table was consecrated, the Church could not realize a communion of saints. He (Mr. Hodgson) thought the society they had that afternoon inaugurated was a communion of saints. He said that the word, "communion," it aimed at moving a section of the world, and he was sure at realizing a communion of saints. (Hear, hear.) He said that the society they had that afternoon inaugurated was a communion of saints. consider and carry out those details. He trusted they would before long have the pleasure of welcoming the new members to the institution, and that they would have to meet to discuss the opening of some well-arranged and suitable rooms for the purpose. The facilities would be successfully carried out. He might mention that the treasurer, Mr. Manning, had received £200 towards the cost of the institution, and that he had been in the room that afternoon. He also mentioned that a note had been received from Lady Augustus Loftus, expressing her regret that she could not attend the meeting, and saying that the movement would be successful. The benediction was pronounced by the chairman, and the meeting terminated.

Since then an invitation has been made in London to send a team to the rifle competition to be held in London on November 1st and 2nd. At the burning of Professor Monmsen's library at Charleston, about 40,000 volumes were lost. Among them a number of highly precious and rare manuscripts, among which were five borrowed from the libraries of the University of Cambridge, and the University of Oxford, and the fourth and eighth centuries. They were unique, and now totally and irrevocably lost. Professor Monmsen was a learned and distinguished scholar, and his loss is a great one. A petroleum lamp is supposed to have caused the

The total railway mileage of the United States is 89,263, nearly one-half of the entire mileage of the world. The tide of railway activity is almost entirely running west of the Mississippi. The Eastern States have hardly covered their districts with networks of lines. In 1905 alone 544 miles were constructed last year, in Iowa 100, in Minnesota 451, in Nebraska 285; while Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, and Dakota ran up the total to 2187 of the 4430 miles.
